Preston Bridge Upgrade

In case you haven't noticed, Caltrans just completed much-needed upgrades and repairs to the iconic Hwy 104 bridge over Sutter Creek that we all depend on. During a walk-through of the creek to assess brush removal, Vice Mayor Stacy Rhoades observed that the attachment point of one of the footings needed repair. Caltrans was notified and this repair has been made, along with a refurbishment of the bridge railing. It was cleaned and repainted to match the walking bridge to the west, and the cyclone fencing is new, too! The Creek Committee applied for a Streambed Alteration Agreement and hopes to start clearing the creek of extensive overgrowth starting November 1st.

Winter Leaf Removal

We have all probably observed homeowners clearing their yards by blowing leaves, grass clippings or other debris into the street, rather than bagging it or utilizing their yard waste can. Technically, two codes apply: littering and/or public nuisance. It is the property owner's responsibility to dispose of their own yard waste, not the City's, including waiting for the streetsweeper to pick up your leaves at the curb.

As Fall comes on, it is critical to keep storm drains cleared of debris. Copious amounts of leaves can travel with the rain down the curb to block storm drains and the inlet. Leaf 'dams' impede the smooth flow of water into the drains and often cause a large puddle. This creates nuisance flooding and can potentially cause a safety hazard for drivers and bicyclists. It can even lead to property damage. The public is requested to help by clearing debris from any drain grates near their property.

If you do not have a yard waste container, which are free of charge for residents within Ione city limits, contact ACES at 274-2237. Thank you for taking care of your yard waste and keeping Ione beautiful!

Don't let grease go down the drain!

Grease solidifies once it cools off. Sure, it might flow out of the pan and down the drain, but the fats in the grease and oil from your kitchen mix with the other chemicals in the sewers and form nasty conglomerations of chemicals – known as 'fatbergs' - that can block the pipes that take our dirty water to the wastewater treatment plant.

According to a recent review of the subject, these fat and oil buildups cause about 47% of the up to 36,000 sewer overflows that happen annually in the U.S. While drain cleaners might clear out the pipes in your home, the greasy mess just gets washed into the sewers afterward, creating a bigger problem down the line.

For residential buildings the prevention of fat, oil and grease buildup typically lies with each individual. Some best practices to avoid a problem in your pipes include:

- Recycle! Pour used cooking oil and grease into a sturdy plastic or glass sealable container and place in waste can when the container is full.
- Wipe greasy cooking utensils – including that mayo on the spatula - with a paper towel before washing. A large amount of buildup comes from washing greasy dishes.
- Minimal use of garbage disposals will help reduce blockages in your kitchen sinks from food particles combining with grease in the pipe.
- If you do not wish to recycle, carefully pour the used cooking oil and grease into its original container or another sealable container and throw it in the trash when cool.

Do your part to keep Ione's sewer plant running smoothly for years to come.
